Sir,

Her Majesty's Government have carefully considered Baron Goltstein's note of the 10th of May last on the subject of the new Extradition Treaty between Great Britain and the Netherlands; and I have now the honour to transmit to you the accompanying revised Draft of the Treaty, and to call your attention to the following alterations, which have been made in it since it was sent to Baron Goltstein in Draft form, on the 5th of February last.

Article II n^o 7. The word „and“ has been substituted for „or“ and the paragraph now stands as „embezzlement and larceny“. The crime „verduistering“ is the offence known to the English law as „embezzlement“. Her Majesty's Government would, therefore, suggest that in the Dutch text of the Treaty the words „verduistering“ and „diefstal“ should be inserted, as being the Dutch equivalents of „embezzlement“ and „larceny“ respectively.

It has been thought best to retain the Crime .. fraud by a badlee &c. (nº 11 in the list of offences).

Article X.

Her Majesty's Government trust that the second paragraph of this article will, in its present form, be acceptable to the Netherland Government.

Article XIII.

This Article is a translation of the text proposed in Baron Goltstein's note of the 10th of May last. —

Article XVIII.

The amendments in this Article were accepted by Baron Goltstein in his note of the 26th of June 1895. —

Article XX

In view of a suggestion which has been made by the Netherland Government through Her Majesty's Minister at The Hague, it has been stipulated in this Article that the Treaty shall come into force, three months

after the exchange of the ratifications.

If the Treaty in its present shape is accepted by the Netherland Government, I shall have much pleasure in appointing
an early day for its signature. —

I have &c.
